Participate in a Program Pilot:
Addressing Climate Emotions in Schools
Climate Mental Health Network and National Environmental Education Foundation

About the program

Climate Mental Health Network and National Environmental Education Foundation are seeking participants to pilot a new set of resources created for public middle school teachers in Fall 2024. These resources aim to prepare teachers to teach about climate change in developmentally appropriate ways, and effectively respond to students’ emotional reactions to this issue.

You are eligible for this study if you meet ALL of the following criteria:

- Currently employed as a teacher serving public middle school students (5th-8th grade) in the United States
- Currently employed at a public school (or public charter school) in the United States
- Have access to a private, Wi-Fi-connected computer, tablet, or phone with video capabilities
- Will be teaching about climate change or environmental problems in at least one class in Fall 2024 (can be teaching any subject, as long as climate change will be discussed)

Program requirements

Between September - December 2024, you will be required to:

- Attend 2 all-teacher meetings on Zoom (90 minutes each)
- Watch 2 brief (5-10 minute) mindfulness videos
- Use at least 2 activities from our toolkit in your classroom
- Complete 2 surveys to provide feedback on the toolkit activities and mindfulness videos

Compensation

You will receive $500 for full participation in this program. Payment will be made upon completion of all of the above requirements.

If you meet the eligibility criteria above, and are interested in participating, please complete this form below to apply by May 31st. We will be accepting teachers on a rolling basis.
