President’s Message

President’s Letter

Let’s Do More Together in 2024!

The New Year is a great time to celebrate our membership in this amazing organization by cultivating connections and creating community in 2024! We know that collectively; our influence is stronger. We can empower each other by creating new opportunities for networking, burgeoning friendships, and collaborations.

There is a humble sense of accomplishment and immense gratitude to our members for what we have done as an organization in 2023. We have created an organization where women from all walks of life network to make a difference in gender equity while we continue to support each other as we continue the fight. Our committees and taskforces have facilitated achievements of success and recognition. We are indebted to each other for the many volunteer hours that have made a true difference for women. Thank you to every member for your commitment and invaluable contributions. I’m deeply grateful to all of you for making NFBPWC a membership organization that truly can move the needle for women and women’s issues.

We leave 2023 with sadness as we mourn the loss of BPW members who graced our organization with their presence and inspiring leadership. Let us all take a moment to remember those who walked these proverbial halls before us and ensure that their legacy carries through for another 100 years!

We continue to create programming for our members and guests that increases our propensity for connection and our ability to empower women. In 2024 NFBPWC will have its Biennial Conference in King of Prussia, Pennsylvania from July 18-21, 2024 with the theme: “Equality Has No Deadline!” (https://www.nfbpwc.org/Biennial-General-Assembly) BPW International will hold their triennial Congress in Mar del Plato, Argentina from November 17-21, 2024 with the theme: “New Actions through Cooperation.” (https://www.bpw-international.org/events/bpw-international-congress-argentina-2024/) There is more to come this year and we cannot wait to share our community with our current and future members!

I look forward to celebrating and honoring one another, as each member brings their own gifts to the conversation. The women of today need to hear us. The women of tomorrow want to see us standing strong against misogyny, racism, violence, and injustice. We have the power to make a difference as we continue to honor our interconnectedness as humans, more specifically as women.

NFBPWC will continue to light a path for our future that promotes justice, solidarity, diversity, inclusion, innovation, and celebration in 2024. Sending personal wishes of celebration, health, and progress around the globe!

Kind Regards,

Megan Shellman-Rickard

Celebrations of Life

TWILA STOUT, February 8, 1938-November 27, 2023

I have known Twila Stout for more than 40 years. We originally met when I was the Merced County Librarian, and she worked in the main library. I was quickly impressed with her warmth, intelligence and sense of humor. One day I invited her out to lunch. As Twila has said many times – “Be wary of Bosses inviting you out to lunch.” I told her about the Business and Professional Women’s organization and invited her to join the Merced BPW, which she did. When anyone asked Twila how she became a BPW member, she would tell this story. When Merced BPW closed, she joined East Los Angeles-Montebello BPW (my Club) even though she was a long way from East Los Angeles-Montebello. When we were on Zoom, she would Zoom in, but only attended one in-person meeting and that was when she stayed with me for a couple of days. She also was a Dual Member of Berkeley and Downtown Sacramento BPW Clubs and would attend those meetings via Zoom.

She was born in Rose Bud, Arkansas, but left there as a child. She graduated from school in Merced. She married a contractor George “Bud” Stout so flew with him to various places around the United States where he was working. They had a son Tim, a daughter Terri, four grandchildren, six great-grandchildren and seven great-great-grandchildren. The marriage ended in divorce.

When Twila retired from the Merced County Library (although she never did really retire, but filled in at various branches when staff members were on vacation or sick), we had a roast-type program for her at the park behind the library. A large group of people from the community attended including the editor of the “Merced County Times” turned out to say they will miss her in the library.

Besides being active in BPW, she was a “Red Hat Lady” and active in Beta Sigma Phi, Merced Woman’s Club, Friends of the Merced County Library, AARP and ACPCA. She was most active in Toastmasters’ International and was in fifteen Clubs. She was the judge for many of their competitions and programs in California, the United States and around the world. She was also a mentor. The day after she died, she was to participate in the Singapore Toastmasters. They wondered why she was not there on Zoom. Twila was a wonderful storyteller.

Twila will be missed by all who knew her. Let’s all raise a glass of Coke to her as that is what she would have each day for breakfast, and let’s all continue to support and mentor others.

Linda Wilson, President, East Los Angeles-Montebello BPW
With Profound Sadness from Barbara Bozeman

You may not know this, but within the small and mighty band of sisters, known as NFBPWC-North Carolina most of our members are Past State Presidents for BPW/NC. A few months ago, another past president joined our ranks – Gail Bradshaw Harper, from Kenansville, North Carolina.

I’m sad to report that Gail passed away on December 19th, 2023.

What I can tell you about Gail is that she was a kind and generous friend. We could and often did spend hours just chattering away like parrots, talking about so many things – and not just our BPW connection. She loved travelling and architecture. So many times, we talked about taking a road trip up to where I was from in RI because she always wanted to tour the mansions. She was also a competitive horsewoman in her youth. She talked of those days with great pride and joy.

In her professional life, numbers were her “thing.” Gail spent many years working for others in accounting and then opened her own successful business “Accounting Solutions by Gail Harper” in her hometown of Kenansville.

She first joined BPW in 2004 and after only 4 years working at the club level, she stepped up to serve and enhance the North Carolina state organization and from 2010 to 2011, she served as the State President.

She was motivated to help anyone in need – and a great believer in and supporter of what the Business and Professional Women’s Clubs are all about. She championed many causes and helped support many efforts, the impact of which is immeasurable.

She is survived by her husband Wyatt, daughters Jessica and Jamie, and grandchildren, Ariel, Chloe, Nelson, and William and her brother Gary. She adored and cherished her family.

Most of you will never have the privilege of knowing Gail as we did. I know I speak for the North Carolinians when I say – we loved her very dearly, and we shall miss her so very much.

LGBTQ+ Team Report

By: Susan Oser, NFBPWC Advocacy Team LGBTQIA+ Lead

Happy New Year!

Hoping that you all had a wonderful holiday. As we start 2024 with new energy, I thought it was time to do something new for this column. In the past, we’ve covered the flags and the organizations of the LGBTQ+ community. This year, why not focus on the icons, activists and other people that make up this wonderful community. Just as we do in our own organization sharing the stories of the women around us and the women that make up the history of the BPW organization, it makes sense to do the same for this column. If you have any suggestions or personally know of someone you think should be highlighted this year for the column, please contact me at the email address below.

In addition to the icons, I’ll be sharing the good news and the bad news of what is happening within the community. It is still important to be aware of the current court cases in proceedings, discriminatory actions and more so that we as an organization can be better allies. At the same time, we also need to share and celebrate the good too.
LGBTQ+ Icon of the Month: Demi Lovato

Why highlight?
She is a popular singer-songwriter that came out as pansexual this year on the popular Joe Rogan Experience show. Their songs are beautiful, and they have been nominated for a Grammy. They are a popular icon among the younger demographic.

Good LGBTQ+ News for January:

✓ New Legislation Package Introduced in Michigan: Removing Barriers for Legal Name Change; Accurate ID Documents and Birth Certificates – http://tinyurl.com/3h43jjrc Transgender, gender non-conforming, and non-binary people with incongruent identity documents are at a greater risk of experiencing violence and discrimination. Some states make it difficult and expensive for trans people to update their birth certificates or other identity documents, with some even requiring trans people to undergo surgery just to get an amended document.

✓ We Are Here: LGBTQ+ Adult Population in United States Reaches At Least 20 Million, According to Human Rights Campaign Foundation Report - http://tinyurl.com/y5scnwas According to an analysis of data in the Census Bureau’s recent Household Pulse Survey, 8% of respondents identified themselves as LGBTQ+, suggesting previous surveys undercounted the population.

✓ Gov. Gretchen Whitmer appoints members to state’s first LGBTQ+ Commission. http://tinyurl.com/49zu8y7v The Governor named 13 members to the LGBTQ+ Commission the week of November 26th. The commissioners have not yet met and will set goals for improving life for the LGBTQ+ community in Michigan.

And now for the BAD news:

➢ UNAIDS officials say anti-gay laws impede fight against HIV/AIDS. http://tinyurl.com/5n6mbhdd Sixty-seven countries have laws that criminalize gay sex. In those countries, HIV prevalence rates are about five times higher among gay men than in countries where same-sex relations are not criminalized, according to figures from UNAIDS.

➢ Republican Congressman: Pass National Sports Ban To Make Trans People Detransition http://tinyurl.com/3zeeeyh Representative Glenn Grothman, in a hearing to ban trans people from playing sports of their gender identity, said a trans sports ban must pass because otherwise, trans people won’t "switch back."

ERA Team Report

By: Nancy Werner, NFBPWC Advocacy Team ERA Lead

EQUAL RIGHTS AMENDMENT
100th ANNIVERSARY MARCH

Advocacy – Equal Rights Amendment. “Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any State on account of sex” needs to be placed into our Constitution. While most states have laws prohibiting discrimination of any kind based on sex, proponents of the E.R.A. say laws can be reversed or eliminated. Having a Constitutional Amendment would cement those rights.

Wednesday, December 13th came and went with little news on the media. The ERA- Coalition worked hard for us to remember that is was December 13, 1923 when the ERA was first introduced in Congress. They invited every group who has voiced or has promoted the ERA passage. (For this list, please go to the Pennsylvania section and search for Lilly Gioia’s-January 2024 Legislation/Advocacy Report. She did a remarkable job researching the groups.)

But it was the weekly Ms. Memo: This Week in Women’s Rights had more information shared under-“100 Years, Not one More”: ERA Advocated Rally on Centennial Anniversary. Madelyn Amos, author, provided an excellent description of the day that started in Lafayette Square. The chants of “not one more year” were heard. The activists marched from the White House to the Capitol with the one mission –not one more year should pass without rights being protected by the Constitution on the basis of sex.

Lilly got it right that they made a few stops along the way. They made sure to visit the department of Justice to ask Attorney Merrick General Garland to remove the Trump Administration OLC memo that is blocking the ERA’s path. They then marched to visit the National Archives where U.S. Archivist Colleen Shogan was told that the ERA has met all the requirements according to Article V and to be published as the 28th Amendment. It was here that Rep. Cori Bush, D-MO, met the group. She shared all the work highlighting the work of women of color to fight for equality. (Sidebar – Denice Robinson and I met her at the Seneca Falls gathering this past summer and she is a passionate dynamo for the ERA passage.)
But you can’t have a march without a press conference. At the House triangle, Rep. Ayanna Pressley (D-MA) was the main speaker but she was joined by many – Rep. Jennifer McClellan (D-VA); Gloria L. Blackwell, CEO of American Association of University Women; Honorable Carolyn Maloney, Board Chair of ERA Coalition and former U.S. representative; Eleanor Smeal, President of Feminist Majority; Shalina Effendi, organizer of Generation Ratify; Kase Solomon, League of Women Voters; and, Margaret Mitchell, CEO of YWCA USA. (The photo above is as Eleanor Smeal speaking.)

One very important task for all of us – Call Colleen Shogan at 202-357-5900 – Here is your message – My name is ______________. I am calling from __________(name your state). I am asking that you do your duty and publish the Equal Rights Amendment as the 28th Amendment. The E.R.A. has fulfilled the requirements set forth in Article Five of the Constitution and we can wait no longer for full constitutional protection.

It is all written out for you. Please try it.

Also, if you haven’t signed the http://www.sign4era.org to receive notifications, please do so. We are looking for a million signers. Please keep in touch with your Senators using the NFBPWC “One Click.” We have been promised a revisit and we need to be ready. Keep clicking.

I was so hoping that the ERA might be achieved this year, but everyone went home in Washington D.C. - the House and Senate for the Holidays. There are so many issues that need attention. We need to keep working for the passage of the ERA. Just remember-Miracles do happen.

Immediate Past President Report

By: Sandra Thompson, NFBPWC’s Immediate Past President

We have lost another female trailblazer, Supreme Court Justice, Sandra Day O’Connor. She was the FIRST woman to serve as a Supreme Court Justice.

She was born in 1930, in El Paso, Texas. She was the daughter of a rancher and was raised on a 198,000-acre ranch in Arizona. At the age of 16 she enrolled in Stanford University. She graduated magna cum laude with a B.A. in economics in 1950. She remained at Stanford Law School. She served on the Stanford Law Review. Day received the Order of the Coif, indicating she was in the top 10 percent of her class.

Upon graduation from law school in 1952, O’Connor had difficulty finding a paying job as an attorney in a law firm because of her gender. O’Connor found employment as a deputy county attorney in San Mateo, California, after she offered to work for no salary and without an office, sharing space with a secretary. After a few months, she began drawing a small salary as she performed legal research and wrote memos.
When her husband John Jay O'Connor was drafted, she decided to go with him to work in Germany as a civilian attorney for the Army's Quartermaster Corps. They remained there for three years before returning to the States where they settled in Maricopa County, Arizona, to begin their family. They had three sons: Scott (born 1958), Brian (born 1960), and Jay (born 1962). Following Brian's birth, O'Connor took a five-year hiatus from the practice of law.

O'Connor served as assistant Attorney General of Arizona from 1965 to 1969. In 1969, the governor of Arizona appointed O'Connor to fill a vacancy in the Arizona Senate. She ran for and won the election for the seat the following year. By 1973, she became the first woman to serve as Arizona's or any state's Majority Leader. She developed a reputation as a skilled negotiator and a moderate. After serving two full terms, O'Connor decided to leave the Senate.

In 1974, O'Connor was appointed to the Maricopa County Superior Court, serving from 1975 to 1979, when she was elevated to the Arizona State Court of Appeals. She served on the Court of Appeals-Division One until 1981 when she was appointed to the Supreme Court by President Ronald Reagan. She retired in 2006. When she first arrived at the Supreme Court there was not even a women’s bathroom.

According to her son, Jay’s, eulogy that she brought a formidable energy to her personal life as well, her son noted that her way of relaxing after a long day at work was “three rounds of tennis or 18 holes of golf.” She was a voracious reader and a dancer along with her husband. She even took disco lessons. Her son also said that she honed her skills questioning attorneys by grilling her sons why they were out late on a Saturday night. Her son said that her final message to her three sons was “Our purpose in life is to help others along the way.” He continued “What a beautiful, powerful and totally Sandra Day O’Connor sentiment.”

Wishing you all a happy, joyful, peaceful and healthy 2024!

Environment & Sustainable Development Committee

By: Marikay Shellman, BPW Colorado Virtual Chair, NFBPWC Environment and Sustainable Development Committee (2022-2024)

Happy New Year to all of our NFBPWC members! Time for those New Year’s resolutions. And to keep it easy, we are suggesting 12 Simple Solutions that address Climate Crisis from which you can choose, one from each month of 2023.

2. Reduce food waste. Make the freezer your best friend. (www.foodprint.org)

3. Prioritize sustainable development and poverty eradication by financing environmental justice. Join local and community-led fights.

5. No Mow Spring whether it be April, May or June. Don’t jump into spring clean-up. Re-think your lawn. (https://beecityusa.org>no-mow-may)

6. Educate yourself about water. The earth is running out of clean drinking water. Learn about the importance of protecting our rivers and streams, our wetlands, and our sustainable water supply. (https://tinyurl.com)

7. Curb your carbon emissions. Park your car and walk inside skipping the drive-thru. Avoid running late, you’ll burn less fuel. Park in the back of the parking lot instead of driving around and looking for the closest spot.

8. Be a “plastic-hater”. Avoid the use of plastic whenever possible. “1 million plastic bottles are used around the world per minute... 5 trillion plastic bags are used worldwide per year.” (Greensanity Designs https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=7sjBbs3BOfY).

9. Become a backyard gardener. Home-grown food reduces carbon emissions from burning fossil fuels by reducing food packaging, refrigeration, and transportation. And no plastic packaging is required.

10. Use eco-friendly menstrual products. These products are free from toxins and chemicals that harm our bodies and our environment.

11. Recycle the correct way. Don’t recycle anything smaller than a credit card. Empty, clean, and dry should be your household motto. When in doubt, throw it out.
12. Remember Nature Boy and his message of the “Earth Box.” Spread peace and love to the Earth. Treat earth like your own bed, keep it clean and tidy.

Bring Back the Pollinators

By: Marikay Shellman, BPW Colorado Virtual Chair, NFBPWC Environment and Sustainable Development Committee (2022-2024)

With all the weighty news of the world and climate crisis, gardening can bring emotional refuge and physical health. With January, the excitement of seed catalogues arrives with promise for the upcoming planting season. Research has found that the benefits of conservation in small spaces such as gardens have “real, quantifiable effects.” By restoring yards with native plants https://www.nwf.org/nativeplantfinder and https://www.audubon.org/native-plants, researchers found that within just 3 years a large increase in both the diversity and abundance of invertebrates occurred. Having the goal of providing habitat for native bees, butterflies, and birds while growing vegetables and flowers will have the additional benefits of reducing water use on your lawn while maximizing climate benefits.

When ordering your seeds and plants, plan for flowers to bloom throughout the seasons. Springtime bloomers include yarrow, bluebells, penstemon. Summer has milkweed, flax primrose beebalm blossoming. Don’t forget those end of season flowers, blanket flower, goldenrod, asters. By allowing your plants to go to seed, you will provide food for birds throughout the fall. Sunflowers are the best as they provide pollen and nectar for native bees and hummingbirds, are host plants for moths which are a declining pollinator species, in addition to food for birds.

Yes, we need to push for stronger legislation to protect biodiversity and natural lands and to change the way we farm, no-till, cover crops and little to no pesticides. Meanwhile we can add to our own peace of mind by planting gardens.

Public Relations Committee Report

Navigating the Digital Frontier:
Key Considerations for Business Professional Women in 2024

As we step into the new year, the landscape of business communication continues to evolve at an unprecedented pace, driven by technological advancements and global changes. For business professionals, staying ahead of the curve in online communications is crucial for success in 2024. One of the most effective ways to achieve this is through upskilling – acquiring new skills and refining existing ones to adapt to the demands of the digital age.

The Dynamics of Online Communication

As we move forward in 2024, business professionals need to pay attention to several key aspects of online communication.

- Cybersecurity Awareness
  With an increasing reliance on digital platforms, the risk of cyber threats also rises. Business professionals should prioritize cybersecurity awareness to safeguard sensitive information. Even simple password management app is a crucial step to securing your sensitive information, especially when passwords are shared.

- Adapting to New Platforms
  The digital landscape is dynamic, with new communication platforms emerging regularly. Business professionals should stay abreast of emerging trends and technologies, exploring platforms that resonate with their target audience. Being adaptable and willing to experiment with new tools is essential.

- Enhancing Visual Communication
  In an era dominated by multimedia content, mastering visual communication is imperative. Professionals should focus on creating compelling visuals, whether through graphics, videos, or presentations. Visual content not only captures attention but also facilitates better understanding.
Embracing AI and Automation

Artificial Intelligence (AI) and automation are revolutionizing online communication. Business professionals need to understand how AI can streamline processes, enhance customer interactions, and improve overall efficiency. Upskilling in AI-related areas will be a significant advantage in 2024.

The Benefits of Upskilling

Upskilling is not just a buzzword; it's a strategic necessity in today's fast-paced business environment. Here are some compelling reasons why business professionals should prioritize upskilling in the new year:

Remain Relevant in a Changing Landscape

The business landscape constantly evolves, and those who fail to adapt risk becoming obsolete. Upskilling ensures that professionals remain relevant and equipped to tackle the challenges of a digital future.

- Increased Productivity and Efficiency
  Acquiring new skills can lead to improved productivity and efficiency. Upskilling in areas such as project management, data analysis, or digital marketing can streamline processes and help professionals achieve better results in less time.

- Enhanced Problem-Solving Abilities
  Upskilling often involves developing critical thinking and problem-solving skills. As professionals gain new knowledge, they become better equipped to analyze situations, make informed decisions, and navigate complex challenges.

- Competitive Advantage in the Job Market
  In a competitive job market, possessing a diverse skill set sets professionals apart. Employers value individuals who demonstrate a commitment to continuous learning, making upskilling a valuable asset for career advancement.

- Future-Proofing Careers
  Technology is advancing rapidly, and jobs that exist today may evolve or be replaced by new roles. Upskilling ensures that professionals are prepared for the future, capable of adapting to changing job requirements and industry trends.

As we embark on the journey of 2024, women business professionals must pay close attention to the evolving landscape of online communication. Embracing new platforms, prioritizing cybersecurity, and mastering visual communication are critical components of success. Furthermore, investing in upskilling is not just a personal growth initiative; it is a strategic move to ensure relevance, efficiency, and competitiveness in the ever-changing business landscape of the digital age.

NFBPWC will be offering training courses in the coming year that will help you stay on top of your skillset and give you tools to help you upskill to be ready for any professional opportunity.

PATH TO SUCCESS: TEAMWORK, COOPERATION, PARTNERSHIP. INSPIRATION

CFBPW mourns the loss of two longstanding members.

Past State President Jacqueline Melvin

The California Federation is sad to announce the passing of Past State President Jackie Melvin. Jackie joined BPW in 1984 and served in numerous offices and chairmanships at the local, district, state, national and international levels.

She led the California Federation in two important projects, lobbying for affirmative action and increasing awareness of sexual harassment.

After 20-years as an English and drama high school teacher, Jackie left the education field to attend law school and began a new career as an attorney. In a solo practice, she specialized and wills, trusts, and estates.

Jackie was known for her intellect and sharp wit and never hesitated to state her opinions. She will be greatly missed by all her friends.

Twila Ruth Stout - Long Standing BPW Member

Twila went to sleep at home and woke up in heaven. She loved her adopted home state of California particularly Merced County. She was active in clubs, Toastmasters International 15 clubs, Beta Sigma Phi, Merced Women’s Club, BPW (Business & Professional Women), Friends of the Merced County Library.

She first joined the BPW Merced and later joined East Los Angeles-Montebello BPW club. Currently she was a dual member of Berkeley BPW and Sacramento BPW clubs. She was a great mentor to all who wanted to learn public speaking.

Twila will be missed by everyone who knew her. Let’s all raise a glass of Coke to her as that is what she would have each day for breakfast!

By: Shirley Zeller, President, NFBPWC Michigan Federation and Chair of the Cancer Board of Overseers of the Michigan BPW

The Michigan BPW Cancer Fund was established in 1947 initially to maintain a fund for cancer research. In 1949 it was expanded to provide financial assistance to BPW members for cancer related expenses. Since then it has been expanded to provide assistance to family of members in the same household and covers an catastrophic disease, not just cancer. The fund is administered by a Cancer Board of Overseers made up of Michigan BPW members. It is available for those expenses not covered by the member’s insurance, i.e., travel to appointments, co-pays, lost wages due to treatment. All information is confidential to the member and the Board and provides up to $3,500 a year, up to three years.

Funding for this is provided mainly by individual bequests, local organization contributions, and donations from members. Thousands of dollars have been provided to our members over the years of the fund existence. The fund is a 501(c)(3) foundation maintained separately from Michigan BPW funds.

In the past, the Fund has supported a Fellow at the University of Michigan for cancer research and thousands of dollars have been donated to hospitals in Michigan to help women in Michigan receive cancer treatments. Our Michigan BPW members are so thankful for those wise and caring women who so carefully developed the Cancer Fund more than 70 years ago to assist BPW sisters in need.

At our December 21, 2023, meeting we had our annual holiday party. We did a twist on secret Santa. Some cool gifts will be arriving at our NC members’ homes including a handmade apron, a couple of Starbucks gift certificates, ornaments, socks and even a lantern to light the way!

We are sending healing thoughts to a couple of our member’s moms. We hope that those daughters will have safe travels in this holiday season as they head out to see their moms.

Hats off to Mary Lou and her church as they sponsor “The Room in the Inn” weekly in the Charlotte, NC area. Mary Lou is on linen duty. She knows how to fold a fitted sheet, so reach out to her if you need instructions! She also has an amazing meatloaf and potpie recipe, maybe she will share?

Varnell’s “kids from the GED class” at Edgecombe Community College sent us a thank you/holiday card for our support. Varnell is proud to announce that the students have clocked more than 1000 hours in class between August and December. She attributes this accomplishment to the snacks we contribute!

Our next meeting will be on January 18, 2024. It’s our annual meeting.

We NC members wish you a wonderful new year full of happiness and heath.
Why I Relay by Varnell Kinnin

This pretty little Cocker Spaniel had to be put down November 29, 2023.
My family had to go to Raleigh to the Veterinary School to give permission to put her down because we did not want her to suffer. She had Lymphoma and the cancer had affected her organs.
She had been sick for a while, and we finally found out why Sunday. Her name is Raleigh, and she was 5.
Yes, I was tore up from the floor up. (Still am). She was my "furry grand dog."
I have had family members die of cancer but this hurts like no other because she depended on us for everything.

If they find a cure for lymphoma for humans, of course that will be a cure for dogs also.
So, over the holidays, ask family and friends to help with Relay. We need all the help we can to find a cure for this deadly disease. I know I will be asking and donating.

Finally, the two things that give my family some comfort are that she is not suffering and "All Dogs go to Heaven."
That's why I Relay.

WASHINGTON D.C. MARCH FOR THE EQUAL RIGHTS AMENDMENT:

In their 9/30/23 issue, MS MAGAZINE quoted President Biden’s challenge to Congress to take action on the E.R.A. “It is long past time to definitively enshrine the principle of gender equality in the Constitution,” Biden said. “Together we can and must build a future where our daughters have all the same rights and opportunities as our sons, where all women and girls have a chance to realize their God-given potential, and where we can finally realize the full promise of America for all Americans.”

On December 13, 1923 the Equal Rights Amendment was introduced in Congress. 100 Years later on December 13, 2023 members of the ERA-Coalition, Equality Now, the American Association of University Women, the Feminist Majority, the League of Women Voters, the National Council of Negro Women, the National Organization for Women, WomenConnect4Good, and the YWCA marched from the White House to the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) with one message: There are squabbles in government about what branch needs to take action on adopting the Equal Rights Amendment. The E.R.A. is not a hot potato to be passed from office to office! From the DOJ determined E.R.A. supporters marched to the National Archives and finally to the steps of U.S. Capitol demanding members of Congress sign a discharge petition that would bring H.J.Res.25 to the floor for a vote. H.J.Res.25 is a joint resolution that would remove the arbitrary time limit from the E.R.A. and affirm its validity as fully ratified. Other women’s rights organizations supporting the march of #ERANOW partners included Equal Means Equal, National Council of Jewish Women, Sojourners, Democrats Abroad, African American Policy Forum, Generation Ratify, GenZ Girl Gang, and many more. All those who support the E.R.A. are urged to call U.S. Archivist Coleen Shogan at 202-357-5900 with this message: “My name is ___(your name)__ I am calling from ___(your state)__ I am asking that you do your duty and publish the Equal Rights Amendment as the 28th Amendment. The E.R.A. has fulfilled the requirements set forth in Article Five of the Constitution and we can wait no longer for full constitutional protection.”

PRESIDENT BIDEN ISSUES FIRST-EVER WOMEN’S HEALTH RESEARCH INITIATIVE:

“All women I know has a story about leaving her doctor’s office with more questions than answers. Not because our doctors are withholding information, but because there’s just not enough research yet on how to best manage and treat even common women’s health conditions. In 2023 that is unacceptable,” said First Lady Dr. Jill Biden in December when the first-ever Women’s Health Research Initiative was announced by the White House. President Joe Biden pledged his Administration will do “everything we can to drive innovation in women’s health and close research gaps.”

Research on women’s health is drastically underfunded, leading to significant research gaps with serious consequences. The National Institutes of Health (NIH) 2020 scientific studies budget earmarked only 10.8% for women’s health research. This lack of investment limits understanding of conditions that are specific to women, predominantly affect women, or affect women differently. Within 45 days Initiative members will recommend concrete actions the Biden-Harris administration can take to improve how research is conducted to maximize results. Why are women twice as likely to experience an anxiety disorder or depression as men? Why are nearly 80% of people diagnosed with an autoimmune disease like lupus, female? Why may women experience heart attack symptoms differently than men which can delay appropriate treatment in an emergency room?

All Executive departments and agencies across the Federal government including the U.S. Departments of Health and Human Services, Defense and Veterans Affairs, the White House Office of Management and Budget and Office of Science and Technology Policy will all be required to participate in this effort being run out of the First Lady’s Office and chaired by Dr. Carolyn Mazure. A Professor in Women’s Health Research and Professor of Psychiatry and Psychology at Yale School of Medicine, Dr. Mazure created Yale’s Women’s Health Research focusing on topics from cardiovascular disease to cancers. One half the nation’s people are suffering from poorly understood, debilitating conditions like endometriosis, fibroids, menopausal symptoms, as well as being diagnosed or treated incorrectly for autoimmune disorders. This ground-breaking Initiative will mobilize the Federal government, private sector and philanthropic organizations to remedy the drastic disparities in attention to women’s health research.

SUPREME COURT TO RULE ON ACCESSIBILITY OF MIFEPRISTONE FOR MEDICATION ABORTION:

On 12/13/23 the Court announced it will hear arguments on a Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals decision that threatens to undermine the Food & Drug Administration’s scientific, independent judgment in regulating mifepristone (and ultimately all medications) as safe and effective. The key question in the case is whether courts can “overrule an agency decision they dislike,” the manufacturer of the abortion pill Mifeprex, Danco Laboratories, claimed. The case against Mifepristone approval was brought in Texas by the Alliance for Hippocratic Medicine, a group of anti-abortion emergency room physicians. They claim authority to bring the case because according to them, “FDA always envisioned that emergency room doctors…would be a crucial component of the mifepristone regimen.” Their case is based on the premise that THEY would suffer if they have to treat patients who have taken medication abortion. Therefore, they should have the right to challenge the medication’s safety.
In September 2023 the Biden administration asked the Supreme Court to intervene. For the pharmaceutical and biotechnology industry, permitting judicial second-guessing of F.D.A.’s scientific data evaluations will have a wildly destabilizing effect. Danco Laboratories argued that the lower court had moved to limit access to Mifepristone “at the request of a group of plaintiffs who do not prescribe or use the drug and whose real disagreement with F.D.A. is that they oppose all forms of abortion.” NPR reported that these physicians questioned FDA regulations allowing patients to obtain Mifepristone prescriptions through telemedicine appointments, and to get the drug by mail. The Biden administration counters that the Alliance for Hippocratic Medicine failed to show “any evidence of injury from the availability” of the medication approved since 2000. It has been used safely and effectively by over five million patients who have taken it. The case will be heard in spring 2024 with a decision likely by summer.

INDIANA RFRA LAWSUIT TO OVERTURN DOBBS MOVES FORWARD:

In 2015 the Religious Freedom Restoration Act (RFRA) became law prohibiting government action that interferes with a person’s religious exercise, unless the government can prove it has a compelling reason for doing so. Pam Belluck in the New York Times writes that “for years conservative Christians have used the principle of religious freedom to prevail in legal battles on issues like contraceptive insurance mandates and pandemic restrictions. Now, abortion rights supporters are employing that argument to challenge one of the right’s most prized accomplishments: state bans on abortion.” According to the Brennan Center for Justice, religious freedom complaints are among nearly three dozen post-Roe lawsuits that have been filed against 19 states’ abortion bans. Many of those suing maintain that abortion bans embed conservative Christian ideology into state law and violate the separation of church and state. Though most lawsuits have not yet yielded court rulings, there are signs the arguments may be getting some legal traction.

In Indiana the suit brought by Hoosier Jews for Choice led to a judge issuing a preliminary injunction blocking the state’s abortion ban, finding it violated the state’s Religious Freedom Restoration Act. Judge Heather Welch of Marion County Superior Court certified the Hoosier Jews case as a class-action lawsuit on behalf of “all persons in Indiana whose religious beliefs direct them to obtain abortions in situations prohibited by” the ban. On 12/7/23 the Indiana Court of Appeals heard the latest argument in the class-action lawsuit. Ken Falk, American Civil Liberties Union of Indiana legal director, said “I think what RFRA tells us is that if you are impinging in a substantial way on religious rights, you have to have a compelling interest and there simply is no compelling interest not to allow this religious exemption, particularly given the other exemptions in the law.” Arguments for exemptions might be persuasive because most abortion bans have some exceptions, like rape, experts say. Indiana’s attorney general’s office is asking the state Supreme Court to consider the case.

In Missouri faith leaders are seeking to have the state’s abortion law thrown out alleging that lawmakers openly invoked their personal religious beliefs in drafting the measure. A lawsuit filed in St. Louis is the latest challenge according to an August Huffington Post report revealing that Missouri legislation co-sponsors “repeatedly emphasized their religious intent in enacting the legislation.” Republican Rep. Nick Schroer said that “as a Catholic I do believe life begins at conception and that is built into our legislative findings.” Co-sponsor Republican state Rep Barry Hovis said he was motivated “from the Biblical side of it,” according to the lawsuit. The Missouri suit seeks a permanent injunction barring the state from enforcing its abortion law and a declaration that provisions of its law violate the Missouri Constitution. Plaintiffs include 12 Christian and Jewish leaders. Lead attorney in the case Michelle Banker of the National Women’s Law Center said, “What the lawsuit says is that when you legislate your religious beliefs into law, you impose your beliefs on everyone else and force all of us to live by your own narrow beliefs.” This lawsuit is unique because while plaintiffs in other states claimed harm, in Missouri plaintiffs say the whole law violates separation of church and state and everything should be struck down.

Louisville Kentucky synagogue member Sarah Baron, said, “The Torah teaches us that the fetus does not have the same personhood status as the mother until its first breath. It’s not only cruel, but it represents a situation where Jewish law may require the pregnancy to be terminated.” In Kentucky three Jewish women sued, claiming the state’s ban violates their religious rights under the state’s constitution and religious freedom law.
They allege that Kentucky’s Republican-dominated legislature “imposed sectarian theology” by prohibiting nearly all abortions.

The ban remains in effect while the Kentucky Supreme Court considers a separate case challenging the law. Shannon Russell, policy director for Catholics for Choice, an abortion-rights advocacy group that dissents from the Catholic Church’s official position on abortion said, “The idea that a court would determine when life begins reflects a narrow view of one religion and imposes Christian nationalism on all of us.” The Rev. Katey Zeh, CEO of the Religious Coalition for Reproductive Choice, stated, “This is part of a much larger policy agenda to dismantle our democracy in the name of Christianity.” In a statement, Brent Leatherwood, president of the Ethics and Religious Liberty Commission said, “As Christians, our advocacy must continue until every preborn life is safe from annihilation and every mother is protected from a predatory abortion industry.”

SERIOUS DELAYS IN DELIVERING U.S. MAIL:

U.S. Postal Service delays of regular mail tick up consistently as the agency enters its busiest time of the year with on-time performance slumping to its lowest level in more than two years. For the week ending 11/17/23 First-Class mail delivery time declined to 87.7% from 91% in the previous quarter and from 92.5% in the same period last fiscal year. According to a 12/5/23 Government Executive report, delays come at a perilous time for the Postal Service and the mailing public. The holidays mark a “peak season” and is the agency’s most profitable period of the year. Postal management has acknowledged it could run into some setbacks as it implements broad changes directed by Postmaster Louis DeJoy’s 10-year Delivery for America plan to restructure the Postal Service in the midst of its busiest period. In addition DeJoy announced his intention to hire far fewer seasonal staff than is typically hired during the holidays. Management expressed confidence the delays would not lead to a crisis like USPS experienced during the 2020 holidays when Postmaster DeJoy conceded his agency “missed our service standards by far and disappointed the nation.”

Chair of the Senate Homeland Security and Government Affairs Committee, Senator Gary Peters, (D/Mich) wrote to DeJoy requesting detailed plans of the agency’s network changes and their impact. “I am concerned about the pace of these changes and urge USPS to provide full transparency on its plans moving forward.” DeJoy was appointed by former President Trump and has used new authority to raise postage rates faster than inflation five times since taking office. Dave Lewis, president of a company that helps businesses launch and track mail ad campaigns, tracks millions of mail pieces each week. His data show delays increasing since the summer. “We have definitely seen a decline in First-Class on-time performance, and it seems to be a trend,” Lewis said, noting it’s part of a longer pattern. “2023 is worse than 2022, and 2022 was worse than 2021, even with the Postal Service making it easier to be ‘on time’ in October 2021.” Many mailers believe that USPS is favoring growth in packages while assuming that the decline in mail volume is inevitable. They decry worse service as the Postal Service makes using the mail more expensive.

HOUSE REPUBLICANS PLAN TO ELIMINATE THE LABOR DEPARTMENT’S WOMEN’S BUREAU:

In a rare move, the Republican-controlled House is recommending cutting ALL funding for the more than 100 year-old federal agency tasked with improving conditions for women at work. Alabama Republican Appropriations Committee member Robert Aderholt favors elimination of the Labor Department’s Women’s Bureau. Republicans say doing so “reins in wasteful bureaucracy and enhances oversight and accountability.” That is the rational given for specifically placing the Women’s Bureau on the chopping block, The 19th reported. The choice to cut the Women’s Bureau is a significant departure from recent trends. Under the Biden Administration funding for the Women’s Bureau has gradually increased. Last year saw the biggest bump: a nearly 30% increase to $23 million, for fiscal year 2024, Biden requested $32.4 million, a funding increase of 41% from 2023 for the Women’s Bureau.

The agency previously had bipartisan support, according to Rep. Rosa DeLauro (D/CT), ranking member of Appropriations. She called the elimination “unprecedented,” harming “women’s ability to advance in the workplace.” Founded in 1920 to create policies and standards to improve conditions for women at work, the Bureau helped conduct research that formed the basis of early gender-based labor laws and key legislation on fair pay and paid leave. Today the agency collects and analyzes data on women at work and runs grant programs including the Women in Apprenticeship & Nontraditional Occupations program to develop apprenticeships for women in industries where they are underrepresented. The bureau also supports initiatives that work to close the gender pay gap, advance paid leave policies, alleviate the child care crisis and eliminate workplace harassment. It launched the only federal database comparing child care prices at the county level. Advocates contend the agency could be funded again in future years, but it’s difficult and costly to restart something once it’s been eliminated.

SEXUAL ASSAULT SURVIVORS ARE SUED FOR DEFAMATION UNDER TRUMP-ERA TITLE IX RULES:

A 12/5/23 Government Executive report revealed sexual violence in schools continues to be an epidemic, according to Shiwali Patel, director of justice for student survivors and senior counsel for the National Women’s Law Center. At least 20 to 25 percent of undergraduate women experience sexual assault, she said. Proposed, but not yet finalized Biden administration Title IX changes would protect these students and reverse harmful policies put in place during the Trump administration by former Education Secretary Betsy DeVos. Those rules have led to schools ignoring more incidents of sexual harassment and fewer survivors reporting their experiences or participating in investigations, Patel added.

MS Magazine reported in December 2023 that college campus sexual assault rules implemented under Betsy DeVos, allow a student accused of sexual assault to SUE his accuser. A Connecticut Court of Appeals ruling allowed Saifullah Kahn, accused of sexual assault at Yale University, to sue his accuser for defamation for statements she made during a Title IX proceeding. The Connecticut ruling could impact how schools conduct future Title IX proceedings and influence proposed new Title IX regulations that the Biden administration has been working on since 2020. Survivors’ willingness to come forward is chilled as they are now vulnerable to defamation and other civil suits used increasingly to silence and intimidate victims.

The case of Saifullah Khan v. Yale stemmed from a 2015 sexual assault complaint against Khan who was found not guilty in a criminal trial during which his lawyer cross-examined the accuser, (identified by law only as Jane Doe). Kahn’s lawyer challenged her about her skimpy dress and excessive alcohol consumption. In 2018 after other allegations emerged against Kahn, Yale University-Wide Committee on Sexual Misconduct undertook a Title IX review before the Trump administration issued current Title IX regulations. Khan was expelled in January 2019 after the panel found that the preponderance of the evidence supported the accuser’s claim. In 2019 Khan sued his accuser for defamation based on statements made during the Yale proceeding. The Connecticut Supreme Court ruled unanimously in June 2023 that she was not immune from lawsuits because the Yale hearing lacked sufficient due process safeguards to make it quasi-judicial, such as putting the accuser under oath, allowing cross-examination, presentation of witnesses, meaningful assistance of counsel, and providing an adequate record for appeal as then required under the DeVos Title IX regulation. The accuser could still be entitled to qualified immunity but must undergo a defamation trial to prove that her statements were not malicious. The Trump-era rules more hostile to accusers, have emboldened defendants to file defamation and other lawsuits that are increasingly used to retaliate against and silence women.

Advocacy organizations recently put out a toolkit to help sexual assault survivors understand their rights and the risks of speaking out. The “Survivors Speaking Out Toolkit” was released in August 2023 by the National Women’s Law Center, Know Your IX, Harvard Law School’s Cyberlaw Clinic, and Vanderbilt University Law School’s First Amendment Clinic. It offers practical guidance to help sexual assault survivors make an informed decision about how and whether to speak out. It provides information regarding how to protect themselves from harm, including how to respond to a defamation lawsuit. Taking a page from the same playbook and using defamation suits themselves against abusers, some survivors are following the example of E. Jean Carroll’s successful September 2023 suit against Donald Trump for defamation after he called her rape allegations against him a hoax. In December the Biden Administration announced its intention to finalize a NEW TITLE IX RULE IN MARCH 2024.

H.B.1888 “PERSONAL REPRODUCTIVE LIBERTY” BY PA CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT:

The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette on 12/15/23 reported on the introduction of H.B.1888, a proposed constitutional amendment guaranteeing “personal reproductive liberty,” the right to choose or refuse contraception or fertility care in the state of Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvania Constitution neither guarantees nor penalizes abortion. House Judiciary Committee Majority Leader Rep. Tim Briggs (D-Mont) affirmed his support for the bill and for reproductive health care. “At the end of the day, what’s clear, politicians have no business infringing or interfering with a woman’s right to choose,” he said. Co-Sponsors Rep. Liz Hanbidge and Rep. Danielle Freil-Otten said H.B.1888 would ask voters to constitutionally protect the right to abortion, childbirth, contraception and fertility care. “As a mother to a young girl, I feel a responsibility to ensure that we protect and preserve that right. I do not want my daughters or any of our children’s personal health or economic futures to be at the mercy of a governor’s veto,” Freil-Otten (D-Chester) said. H.B.1888 is the first step to follow Vermont, Michigan, California and Ohio in putting the question to voters. Fifteen states now have total or near total bans on abortion. This comes at a time when the U.S. Supreme Court decided to rule on the availability of abortion medication. A hearing in the Pennsylvania House featured doctors and witnesses who have experienced complex pregnancies, according to a 12/15/23 PA Capital Star report. “What’s happening in other states serves as a stark reminder of how quickly this right can be taken away,” said Rep. Hanbidge (D-Mont). Committee Minority Leader Rob Kauffman (R-Franklin), said, “I will be certainly adamantly opposing it and be fighting for those little ones who would be aborted based on point of viability if this legislation would come to pass.” Dr. Sarah Horvath, OB/GYN at Penn State Health in Hershey testified, “We have evidence that when people are unable to attain their needed abortion care, they’re more likely to be living in poverty four years later and they’re more likely to remain in a relationship with a violent partner.”

ADMIRAL LISA FRANCHETTI JOINS THE U.S. JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF:

President Biden nominated the first female member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in November 2023, noting the historic nature of her appointment as an inspiration to sailors, both men and women. Admiral Franchetti has commanded at all levels, heading U.S. 6th Fleet and U.S. Naval forces Korea. She was only the second woman ever to be promoted to Four-Star Admiral and served deployments as commander of a naval destroyer and two stints as aircraft carrier strike group commander. In both operational and policy areas, Admiral Franchetti brings extensive expertise with a broad scope of experience at sea and ashore as the first female member of the Joint Chiefs.
